Defendant.

(2d Motion to Extend Surrender—#30)

After reading the medical record attached to the motion to verify that a stress test is indeed scheduled for August 21, 2012, the Court can see why it was not produced with the original motion to extend the surrender date for six months. The record clearly shows there is no urgency, or

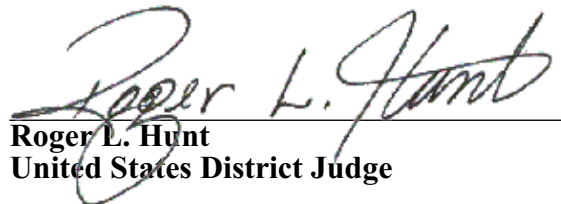

1 even a compelling need for the procedure. It is purely a precautionary measure to be done at Dr.
2 Tennell's convenience.

3 The medical report of May 31, 2012, indicates that the Defendant was taken off the
4 medications used to treat a 3-4 year history of atrial fibrillation, and is only taking a baby aspirin. His
5 "Blood pressure is normal." His heart rate is only slightly elevated. "He has no specific cardiac
6 issues." "He had an echocardiogram which was unremarkable. We will schedule him for a Cardiolite
7 stress test at his convenience. . . ." Of course, this does not conform to the characterization in the first
8 motion that Defendant Tinnell had a life-threatening heart condition.

9 The Court does not know when the Defendant scheduled the stress test (that informa-
10 tion was not provided), but when it was scheduled, the Defendant knew he had a surrender date of 11 August 10, 2012, which is tomorrow.

12 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that this second Emergency Motion for Limited
13 Extension of Time for Voluntary Surrender of Defendant (30) is also DENIED.

14 Dated: August 9, 2012.
